EXTEND SOCIAL PROTECTION

Social protection is a human right recognized in the Universal Declaration of Human Rights of 1948. However, 73 per cent of the world's population is not adequately protected. As many people are not aware of this right, they do not take actions to fulfil it.

The ILO supports countries to extend social protection through the design and implementation of SPFs, but this is not enough. The development of a social protection culture is essential for raising awareness on the human right to social protection. People who are well-informed on the benefits of social protection will be more proactive on defending their labour rights and more willing to enrol in social protection systems.

PROMOTE AND SUPPORT SOCIAL PROTECTION FLOORS

Raising awareness among all is crucial to:

- convince policy-makers that social protection leads to healthier, more educated and productive people, thus contributing to development;
- empower practitioners with knowledge on good practices to extend social protection;
- mobilize donors to support countries in their efforts to extend social protection; and
- raise awareness of beneficiaries on their rights to social protection and their obligations.

The ILO has launched the GET IN Campaign to support awareness raising and education actions at national, regional and international levels. The GET IN Campaign includes four interconnected sub-campaigns aimed at the different target groups.

The GET IN Campaign contributes to the 2030 Agenda on Sustainable Development through the creation and extension of social protection floors (Goal 1.3) and ensuring that the population acquires the knowledge and skills to promote the human right to social protection (Goal 4.7).

The work plan of the GET IN Campaign includes:

- implementation of structured communication actions for each of the four target groups;
- support for countries on the design and implementation of awareness raising and education programmes;
- development of a good practices guide on social protection education based on country-level (Uruguay, Peru and Mongolia) and regional-level (Protección Social para Todos programme in Latin America and the Caribbean, CIESS) experiences; and
- promotion of global adoption of Social Protection Week (last week of April in Latin America and the Caribbean).

The ILO is involved in developing communication and education strategies in Cabo Verde, Cambodia, Ecuador, Egypt, India, Malawi, Moldova, Mongolia, Mozambique, Peru, Philippines, Thailand, Timor-Leste and Zambia.

SOCIAL SECURITY EDUCATION IN URUGUAY

Experience shows that countries that have achieved the extension of social protection to the majority of the population have implemented huge social protection communication and education programmes.

Uruguay developed Social Security Education, a programme managed jointly by the National Social Security Institution and the National Institution of Public Education. The objective of this programme is to increase the knowledge of younger generations on rights and obligations of social protection, thus supporting the development of responsible citizens who are future actors in the social protection system. The education programme in social protection is integrated into the public school curriculum. Teachers are involved in the production of the learning materials and are responsible for delivering the learning sessions. This programme has contributed to the extension of social protection to the entire population.

Ernesto Murro, Minister of Labour and Social Security of Uruguay, presents the programme, Social Security Education
