Social Security Benefits Communication Campaign for the National Social Security Fund of Cambodia

Background

The National Social Security Fund (NFFS) of Cambodia has established the Employment Injury Scheme in 2008. The NSSF is working to set up its second branch, the Social Health Insurance. By the end of April 2017, the scheme reached 642,708 workers out of the first target of 1.1 million to cover formally employed workers.

However, no comprehensive communication strategy aimed at the mass population of beneficiaries has been put in place. This has resulted in some cases of confusion amongst workers who may not understand why 1.3 per cent of their salary is suddenly being deducted - it is the first scheme with a contribution from workers. Also, due to the lack of information, beneficiaries are not using the available services to which they have the right.

The NSSF together with the ILO is developing a communication campaign to raise awareness of workers and employers on the available social security services and to develop a culture of social protection in the country.

Objective

The overall objective of this assignment is to develop a strategic communication campaign to create awareness among workers and employers about the NSSF, and the two schemes it offers with all their respective benefits.

Thus, this assignment includes (i) designing a communication strategy, (ii) developing the creative concept and design, (iii) production and broadcasting of radio advertisings, (iv) producing an evaluation grid to guide the evaluation of the communication campaign.

Due to their predominance in the NSSF population, the population likely to be engaged in the garment industry will be prioritized during the first phase of the work.
